ABSTRACT

This bibliography of three reports updates the 1967 series of comprehensive listings of available research literature on status projections of youth. It is intended to serve as a guide for researchers to use in planning new studies and in providing a broader base for interpreting results of studies already completed. Reports I and II contain entries covering: (1) books; (2) journal articles; (3) bulletins and reports; and (4) unpublished material. Report III contains three sections: (1) residence orientations; (2) income orientations; and (3) family orientations. These reports are intended as an updated revision only, of continuously compiled material on all relevant research published on the status projections of youth. (TA)

INTRODUCTION

In this age of the "publication explosion" it is increasingly difficult to keep up with rapidly accumulating knowledge in particular problem areas of scientific investigation. As researchers have focused increasing attention on the social-psychological attributes of social mobility, one of the areas of great expansion of effort in the social sciences has been the study of status projections (i.e., aspirations and expectations) of youth. One of the problems facing the growing number of researchers involved in investigating this problem area is that relevant research results are reported in a number of different publications representing diverse disciplines and agencies.

In 1964 we came to the conclusion that there was a need to develop a comprehensive listing of the research literature on status projections of youth to serve in guiding researchers to accumulated information that could be used to plan new studies and to provide a broader information context for interpreting results of studies already completed. Since that time we have attempted to continuously compile citations on all relevant research published on status projections of youth and to share these with others. We published the first series of bibliographic listings in 1966[1] and one other updated, revised version of these original listings in 1967[2]. This report constitutes one of a series of three reports that is intended to bring up to date the earlier 1967 listings. The three reports in this third, 1970 series are as follows:

[1] Occupational Aspirations and Expectations: A Bibliography of Research Literature. Texas A&M University, Department of Agricultural Economics and Sociology, Departmental Information Report 66-1, June, 1966; and A Bibliography of Literature on Status Aspirations and Expectations: Educational, Residence, Income, and Family Orientations. Texas A&M University, Department of Agricultural Economics and Sociology, Departmental Information Report 66-7, September, 1966.

*DIR 70-4: Occupational Aspirations and Expectations of Youth: A Bibliography of Research Literature. I.

*DIR 70-5: Educational Aspirations and Expectations of Youth: A Bibliography of Research Literature. II.

*DIR 70-6: Youth's Projections for Residence, Income, and Family Status: A Bibliography of Research Literature. III.

This particular report replaces DIR 67-10, A Bibliography of Literature on Status Projections of Youth: I. Occupational Aspirations and Expectations. The new listing includes 818 citations, an increase of almost 200 over those listed in DIR 67-10 and an increase of over 400 as compared with the original 1966 listing (DIR 66-1).

Our long-range plans are to continually expand and improve upon these listings and to eventually provide selective critical annotations of the research reports cited. Several structured sets of annotations on occupational and educational status projections have already been completed.[3] In addition, several empirical and theoretical syntheses based on these listings and annotations have been reported by the senior author.[4]

We seek the reader's assistance in offering suggestions for improvement of these reports and in providing information about any significant efforts -- old or new -- that should be included in these listings.

The development of this report was made possible by the support of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.[5] The authors also would like to acknowledge the substantial assistance of the following colleagues who contributed in compiling the original listings or helped in producing this most current series: George Ohlendorf, John Pelham, Sherry Wages, Nelson Jacob, and Jane Dameron. INTRODUCTION

In this age of the "publication explosion" it is increasingly difficult to keep up with rapidly accumulating knowledge in particular problem areas of scientific investigation. As researchers have focused increasing attention on the social-psychological attributes of social mobility, one of the areas of great expansion of effort in the social sciences has been the study of status projections (i.e., aspirations and expectations) of youth. One of the problems facing the growing number of researchers involved in investigating this problem area is that relevant research results are reported in a number of different publications representing diverse disciplines and agencies.

In 1964 we came to the conclusion that there was a need to develop a comprehensive listing of the research literature on status projections of youth to serve in guiding researchers to accumulated information that could be used to plan new studies and to provide a broader information context for interpreting results of studies already completed. Since that time we have attempted to continuously compile citations on all relevant research published on status projections of youth and to share these with others. We published the first series of bibliographic listings in 1966[1] and one other updated, revised version of these original listings in 1967[2]. This report constitutes one of a series of three reports that is intended to bring up to date the earlier 1967 listings. The three reports in this third, 1970 series are as follows:

[1] Occupational Aspirations and Expectations: A Bibliography of Research Literature. Texas A&M University, Department of Agricultural Economics and Sociology, Departmental Information Report 66-1, June, 1966; and A Bibliography of Literature on Status Aspirations and Expectations: Educational, Residence, Income, and Family Orientations. Texas A&M University, Department of Agricultural Economics and Sociology, Departmental Information Report 66-7, September, 1966.

*DIR 70-4: Occupational Aspirations and Expectations of Youth: A Bibliography of Research Literature. I.

*DIR 70-5: Educational Aspirations and Expectations of Youth: A Bibliography of Research Literature. II.

*DIR 70-6: Youth's Projections for Residence, Income, and Family Status: A Bibliography of Research Literature. III.

This particular report replaces DIR 67-11, A Bibliography of Literature on Status Projections of Youth: II. Educational Aspirations and Expectations. The new listing includes 421 citations, an increase of 98 over those listed in DIR 67-11 and an increase of almost 200 citations on educational projections as compared with the original 1966 listing (66-7).

Our long-range plans are to continually expand and improve upon these listings and to eventually provide selective critical annotations of the research reports cited. Several structured sets of annotations on occupational and educational status projections have already been completed.[3] In addition, several attempts at empirical and theoretical syntheses based on these listings and annotations have been reported by the senior author.[4]

Texas A&M University, Department of Agricultural Economics and Sociology, DIR 67-10, September, 1967; George W. Ohlendorf, Sherry Wages, and William P. Kuvlesky. A Bibliography of Literature on Status Projections of Youth: II. Educational Aspirations and Expectations. Texas A&M University, Department of Agricultural Economics and Sociology, DIR 67-11, September, 1967; William P. Kuvlesky and George W. Ohlendorf. A Bibliography of Literature on Status Projections of Youth: III. Residence, Income, and Family Orientations. Texas A&M University, Department of Agricultural Economics and Sociology, DIR 67-12, September, 1967.

*Texas A&M University, Agricultural Experiment Station, Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology, Departmental Information Report.

We seek the reader's assistance in offering suggestions for improvement of these reports and in providing information about any significant efforts -- old or new -- that should be included in these listings.

The development of this report was made possible by the support of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.[5] The authors also would like to acknowledge the substantial assistance of the following colleagues who contributed in compiling the original listings or helped in producing this most current series: George Ohlendorf, John Pelham, Sherry Wages, Nelson Jacob, and Jane Dameron. In addition, colleagues too numerous to mention have contributed importantly to the comprehensive nature of these listings by providing us with information about relevant reports, and we wish to thank them for their generous assistance.

INTRODUCTION

In this age of the "publication explosion" it is increasingly difficult to keep up with rapidly accumulating knowledge in particular problem areas of scientific investigation. As researchers have focused increasing attention on the social-psychological attributes of social mobility, one of the areas of great expansion of effort in the social sciences has been the study of status projections (i.e., aspirations and expectations) of youth. One of the problems facing the growing number of researchers involved in investigating this problem area is that relevant research results are reported in a number of different publications representing diverse disciplines and agencies.

In 1964 we came to the conclusion that there was a need to develop a comprehensive listing of the research literature on status projections of youth to serve in guiding researchers to accumulated information that could be used to plan new studies and to provide a broader information context for interpreting results of studies already completed. Since that time we have attempted to continuously compile citations on all relevant research published on status projections of youth and to share these with others. We published the first series of bibliographic listings in 1966[1] and one other updated, revised version of these original listings in 1967[2]. This report constitutes one of a series of three reports that is intended to bring up to date the earlier 1967 listings. The three reports in this third, 1970 series are as follows:

[1] Occupational Aspirations and Expectations: A Bibliography of Research Literature. Texas A&M University, Department of Agricultural Economics and Sociology, Departmental Information Report 66-1, June, 1966; and A Bibliography of Literature on Status Aspirations and Expectations: Educational, Residence, Income, and Family Orientations. Texas A&M University, Department of Agricultural Economics and Sociology, Departmental Information Report 66-7, September, 1966.

*DIR 70-4: Occupational Aspirations and Expectations of Youth: A Bibliography of Research Literature. I.

*DIR 70-5: Educational Aspirations and Expectations of Youth: A Bibliography of Research Literature. II.

*DIR 70-6: Youth's Projections for Residence, Income, and Family Status: A Bibliography of Research Literature. III.

This particular report replaces DIR 67-12, A Bibliography of Literature on Status Projections of Youth: III. Residence, Income, and Family Orientations. The new listing includes 194 citations, an increase of 52 over those listed in DIR 67-12. The new additions are broken down by projections for particular status areas as follows: Residence - 17; Income - 23; Family - 12.

Our long-range plans are to continually expand and improve upon these listings and to eventually provide selective critical annotations of the research reports cited. Several structured sets of annotations on occupational and educational status projections have already been completed.[3] In addition, several attempts at empirical and theoretical syntheses based on these listings and annotations have been reported by the senior author.[4]

We seek the reader's assistance in offering suggestions for improvement of these reports and in providing information about any significant efforts -- old or new -- that should be included in these listings.

The development of this report was made possible by the support of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.[5] The authors also would like to acknowledge the substantial assistance of the following colleagues who contributed in compiling the original listings or helped in producing this most current series: George Ohlendorf, John Pelham, Sherry Wages, Nelson Jacob, and Jane Dameron. In addition, colleagues too numerous to mention have contributed importantly to the comprehensive nature of these listings by providing us with information about relevant reports, and we wish to thank them for their generous assistance.
